

Payment Policy

Prices, checkout, course access, cancellations and refunds.

Effective 30 September 2026

1. Prices and what you receive

Course prices are displayed in South African rand (ZAR) on the relevant course and pricing pages. Review the course description, curriculum, level, included learning materials, price and any stated access period before placing an order. The price shown at checkout is the price for that order. We do not add a separate platform charge. If a different service, such as an individually arranged live lesson, is offered, its price and booking terms must be shown or agreed before payment.

A purchased course provides personal access to the learning content and features described for that course, which may include structured video lessons, worked examples, practice activities, progress tracking and a private student dashboard. A course purchase does not include private tutoring or a guaranteed examination result unless the offer expressly says so.

2. Checkout and access

Create your own student account and verify your email address before paid course access. Online course payments are processed through PayFast. Any additional payment option, such as Google Pay, is available only when it appears in the checkout for your device and transaction.

We activate the purchased course after PayFast verifies the payment. A bank notification, screenshot or return to our site alone does not confirm an order. If money has left your account but access remains pending, please do not immediately pay again; contact us with the order reference so we can trace the transaction. We will correct a verified payment or access error.

Keep your receipt or transaction reference. Course access is linked to the student account used for the purchase and is for that student's use only.

3. Cancellation and refunds

Contact us through the Contact page to request a cancellation or refund. Include the student account email, course name, order reference, purchase date and a short explanation. Do not send card numbers, passwords or one-time PINs.

- Before access begins: If payment is verified but we have not provided access, you may request cancellation and a refund.
- Cooling-off rights: Where the South African Electronic Communications and Transactions Act gives you a seven-day right to cancel an online service purchase, we will honour it. Whether that right applies can depend on whether the service began with your consent before the seven days ended. Other statutory rights continue to apply.

- Duplicate or incorrect charge: We will investigate and refund a verified duplicate or incorrect charge to the extent it was collected by us. An authorisation that was never captured may instead be released by the payment provider or bank.
 - Course unavailable or materially different from its description: Tell us what is missing. We will seek to restore the promised access or provide a suitable remedy, including a refund where required by law. You do not have to accept a substitute course.
 - Change of mind after access begins: Please contact us promptly. We will consider the request in light of the access and service supplied and your applicable legal rights. Opening a course does not, by itself, remove a statutory remedy. Where no cancellation or refund right applies and the course was supplied as described, we may decline a change-of-mind refund.

For a separately booked future lesson or session, you may cancel an advance booking. Any cancellation charge must be disclosed, reasonable in the circumstances and permitted by law. We will not charge a cancellation fee where the person for whom the booking was made cannot attend because of death or hospitalisation. If we cancel a paid session, we will offer a suitable rescheduling option or refund the undelivered session.

We will explain the outcome of a refund request and any amount payable. Approved refunds are normally sent back through the original payment channel where possible. Processing time can depend on PayFast and your bank; any legally required refund deadline takes priority. We will not ask you to share full card details by email or in a contact form.

4. Payment problems and disputes

If an order is pending, a payment was taken twice, or the wrong course was activated, contact us first with the order reference so we can investigate. If you dispute a card transaction with your bank, tell us as well so that we can identify the order and avoid conflicting refund steps. A disputed or reversed payment may cause the corresponding course access to be paused while the transaction is resolved, subject to your legal rights.

5. Contact and changes

For payment, refund and account support, use the Contact page. Current phone, email and support hours are displayed there.

We may update this policy for future purchases by publishing a new version and date. The version provided at the time of purchase governs that order, subject to applicable law and any more favourable remedy we agree to provide. This policy should be read with our Student Terms; it does not limit rights that cannot lawfully be excluded.
